- Equities, Financial Planning Background Ideal
- Link: Research/Strategy/Marketing/Sales
- Six Figure Salary

A rare opportunity exists to join one of Australia's leading margin lending companies. An organisation that has grown organically and through acquisition, it offers one of the most flexible and comprehensive margin lending products in the Australian market.

This new role will be the key source of technical knowledge within the Marketing team, and will be responsible for market analysis, development and special projects. Your technical knowledge of the equities market will play a crucial role in the development of sales support materials and you will work closely with the sales team to gather and strategically apply market feedback.

Your background will be in the equities market – stock broking, financial planning (para-planning), margin lending or similar – or possibly accounting. You have built up a strong technical knowledge in your field and are attracted to a marketing communications role that has both strategic and technical components.

If you would like to know more about this new and unique role, then contact Blaise Davis Habgood or Michael Green.
