

chief executive officer

- Cutting edge health promotion organisation
- Lead 150 staff and 700 volunteers across NSW
- $11.5m budget and growing

ACON has achieved a world-wide reputation for HIV/AIDS prevention, care, support and policy development. More recently ACON has developed programs promoting the health and wellbeing of the gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender (GLBT) community in the areas of drug & alcohol use, mental health, housing, violence and ageing.

This role will oversee the implementation of a new and ambitious strategic plan, ensuring ACON is the leading community-based GLBT health and HIV organisation in NSW, with increasing influence nationally and internationally. Besides ensuring high quality and effective services, you will provide leadership in both the HIV sector and the GLBT community. You will ensure that ACON and its communities have a strong voice in health, welfare, legal and social reforms.

You will have high level general and strategic management skills, considerable experience in government and stakeholder engagement, as well as issues management and a commitment to service and social change. You will combine experience gained in the health or NGO sectors with theoretical knowledge of public health, in particular the key health areas in which ACON works. You will also be committed to community mobilisation and the empowerment of staff.

If leading this best practice community organisation is your career goal then please contact Richard Green on 02 8243 0570 or send your CV to cv@ngorecruitment.com quoting 29677.
