

executive director

- Lead the community response to HIV/AIDS
- Australian and international focus
- Sydney based

Australian Federation of AIDS Organisations (AFAO) is the peak body representing the community-based response to HIV/AIDS including education, policy, advocacy and international projects. AFAO works where the incidence of HIV or the risk of HIV is greatest, such as gay men, HIV positive people, injecting drug users, sex workers and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people.

Working with the Board you will be responsible for strategic planning, leadership, and managing funding and member partnerships. You will advocate for policies, services and programs in partnership with most affected communities and populations including those that are culturally and linguistically diverse.

You're an experienced manager within the health or NGO sectors with a deep understanding of public health. You have extensive knowledge and networks in HIV both locally and internationally with the capacity to work across the government and community sectors. You're an inspiring leader and advocate with a track record in delivering outcomes within a community context.

If you're committed to working towards a world without HIV/AIDS please contact Richard Green on 02 8243 0570 or forward your CV to cv@ngorecruitment.com quoting reference # 30493.
